THE PROFIT PREDICTOR.

BUILD A HERD THAT WORKS AS HARD AS YOU DO.

The American Simmental Association's $All Purpose Index, or $API, considers the cow herd while keeping pressure on terminal traits. And data from the last 25 years show it's working.

20 Economic "Efficiency"

The Dry Matter Intake (DMI) EPD and $Gain economic subindex are now available on Herdbook.org, giving producers a reliable tool for gauging feed efficiency.

by Lane Giess, PhD, ASA Geneticist

43 Rethinking the Role of Weight Ratios

In an industry that often pays by the pound, should we continue prioritizing these ratios with the advanced tools now available?

by Lane Giess, PhD, ASA Geneticist

69 The Crucial Role of Phenotypic Data in Genetic Predictions

In the age of genomic testing and genomically enhanced EPD, do we really need to collect phenotypes? In summary, the answer is yes.

by Ryan Boldt, PhD, IGS Lead Geneticist

83 Crucial Connection

State associations play an integral role in informing the producers in their region about the values of SimGenetics. The ASA has ways to support them.

by Callie Cooley

112 Creating Quality Commercial Cattle

North Carolina commercial producer Jamie Dail goes above and beyond in collecting, submitting, and analyzing data for Triple D Farms.

by Lilly Platts

146 End Product Considerations

Potential updates to yield grading, a push for heavier finished weights, and a shift to considering whole-animal red meat yield leave many questions.

by Lilly Platts

174 The Efficiency vs. Demand Paradox

Packers continue to demand heavier finished cattle, while cow-calf producers are faced with the challenge of maintaining efficiency, longevity, and profitability.

CLARITY IS CASH

LIGHTER COWS

Today's industry pays big for heavy fat steers, but your pocketbook demands smaller cows. What to do?

The answer is clear, dependable data and the courage to bypass traditional straightbreeding.

Simmental-influenced cows are an average 74 lb. lighter at maturity than Angus-sired counterparts.^a

Meanwhile, packers pay $20 to $34 more for SimAngus™ and Simmental-sired steers than English-sired calves.^b

Finally, raise efficient cows and high-performance calves. The proof is in the data – and the cash.

^aUSMARC, Zimmerman, M., et al., "Breed and heterotic effects for mature weight in beef cattle," J. of Anim. Sci., Vol. 99, 2021. Adjusted for sire sampling, Angus was the heaviest at maturity among the 16 breeds evaluated. Solutions are deviations from Angus. YW EPDs were extracted from genetic evaluations conducted in 2019. Estimate of MWT differences at 6 years of age. The study considered 108,857 weight records from 5,156 crossbred cows sired by 787 bulls. ^bEffect of sire breed group on carcass value of feedlot cattle harvested through Tri-County Steer Carcass Futurity Cooperative, Lewis, Iowa, 2002 to 2018. Odde, K. & King, M. (March 2021). Kansas State University. Relationships Among Sire-Breed Group, Calf Sex and Year Group on Carcass Traits. Breeds represented in the English-sired group: Angus, Red Angus, South Devon, Hereford and Shorthorn.

Beef Solutions Bull Sale, Ione

*Located one hour east of Sacramento, CA.
Circle Ranch markets 150 head of SimAngus™ bulls annually.*

*Today's cow herd is primarily a SimAngus™ composite of 50% Simmental and 50% Angus, and the bulls we offer are multigeneration halfbloods.
We harness the power of heterosis to create a more durable genetic product regardless of the environmental challenges posed. We absolutely have a herd target for mature size that we think best fits the majority of our customers and the larger beef industry.
The lion's share of our bulls hit that target dead center and many of our customers prefer them. "On the edges, however, you will find genetics here that can produce powerhouse performance for higher-resource situations, as well as some lines created to minimize maintenance requirements for low-input regions."*

MORE with less

For over 50 years, Bridle Bit Simmentals has built a cow herd known for performance adaptability that produces cattle that perform in any environment.

TODAY performance adaptability is only one piece of what we do. With the rising cost of every input, our greatest tool is the efficiency data we are generating to benefit our customers' bottom line, and ours too.

MULTI GENERATIONAL PAP TESTING
At T-Heart Ranch we offer more than just a PAP score. We take it a step further in testing every one of our registered cows to ensure we can stack multiple generations of PAP testing to allow our customers to get the most information. Our entire herd lives at high altitude. We are confident that you are receiving genetics that will ultimately help your program excel in the high country.

If Beef Is Your Business

American Simmental Association

To learn more about the CMP visit www.simmental.org, then click Carcass Merit Program under the Commercial tab.

Questions, contact cmp@simmgene.com for more information regarding this program.

The American Simmental Association Carcass Merit Program (CMP) is the beef industry's most demanding and informative young sire test. The program is a hallmark of ASA breed improvement for economically relevant carcass traits. Commercial producers play an integral part in this project.

Participants receive:

- ◆ $200 for each AI-sired calf with carcass information
- ◆ Free semen on top young herdsires
- ◆ Free ASA Genetic Evaluation on your cow herd
- ◆ Free genotyping on terminal progeny
- ◆ Keep any or all replacement females

Become a Carcass Merit Program test herd today

*The CMP is a structured young sire progeny test. Participating cooperator herds will random sample their cow herd with CMP semen, and the resulting male (or female) progeny will be harvested with individual carcass data gathered. ASA Staff will work with cooperator herds to provide bulls that fit the general criteria of your management program; however, only bulls nominated into the CMP program may be used. Producers are encouraged to be somewhat proficient in Microsoft Excel for accurate and consistent record-keeping.

Economic "Efficiency": The Utility of $Gain for Improved Feedlot Performance

by Lane Giess, ASA Geneticist

ASA has officially released the $Gain economic subindex and Dry Matter Intake (DMI) as a part of the EPD suite on Herdbook.org. What is $Gain, and how can it be used responsibly?

The business of a seedstock producer is to provide genetic improvement for traits pertinent to economic success through all segments of the beef industry. An example of this are premiums for higher-quality carcasses. These premiums have led to drastic genetic selection for improved marbling in most breed populations. For this reason, seedstock producers play a pivotal role in shaping the genetic foundation of the beef industry. Traits that are associated with actual profitability are what we animal breeders call economically relevant traits (ERTs). Selection for ERTs ensures that commercial cattle producers have access to genetics that enhance profitability throughout the supply chain. Traditional selection for seedstock producers, however, has often over-emphasized growth traits such as weaning and yearling weight, and as such a more balanced approach is necessary to optimize biological and economic efficiency in our cow herds.

The $Gain economic subindex is now available on Herdbook.org.

One of the more recent concerns in the business has been related to feed "efficiency" in feeder cattle. The reason for the quotes around "efficiency" is that in many cases, the tools we have developed to address feed conversion have been related to biological efficiency rather than economic efficiency, which can sometimes be antagonistic to meaningful improvement. A solution to this is the $Gain economic subindex developed by International Genetic Solutions to more appropriately address selection for improved feedlot performance by optimizing the economic efficiency during the finishing phase. Unlike traditional single-trait selection for dry matter intake (DMI) or residual feed intake (RFI), $Gain balances both the economic component of average daily gain (ADG) and DMI, ensuring that the most profitable animals are identified. The result of $Gain is already factored into both $API and $TI, meaning we already factor the relationship of value of gain to the cost of intake in both indexes.

The $Gain prediction is expressed as the difference in daily profitability of animals in the feedlot based on their combination of DMI and ADG expected progeny differences (EPD). ADG is positively weighted by the value of a pound of gain, and DMI is negatively weighted by the cost of a pound of dry matter. For example:

Bull A = $0.10 $Gain EPD

Bull B = $0.00 $Gain EPD

You would expect progeny from Bull A to be $0.10 more profitable per day than progeny from Bull B due to a combination of feed requirements and growth potential. $Gain is fundamentally a ratio-based prediction that accounts for both intake and gain. Animals that consume large amounts of feed but exhibit superior growth rates are recognized as desirable, as are those that consume less but still maintain appropriate growth. Conversely, animals that eat excessively without proportional growth, or those that eat minimally but fail to grow, are penalized within the prediction. This balance ensures that selection decisions are aligned with true economic efficiency, rather than simply reducing intake without considering performance outcomes. Many studies have found a positive genetic correlation between DMI and growth traits (weaning weight, yearling weight, etc.) exists. For instance, studies have shown that DMI is positively correlated with ADG, meaning that selection for reduced DMI alone can inadvertently lead to slower-growing, smaller-framed cattle. This trade-off underscores the importance of an economically driven approach like $Gain rather than a narrow focus on intake reduction.

Many breeders might argue that a tool that addresses this problem already exists in the Residual Feed Intake (RFI) EPD. Residual feed intake (RFI) has been widely used as a measure of feed efficiency, but it presents inherent challenges. RFI is calculated as the difference between an animal's actual feed intake and its predicted intake based on maintenance and growth requirements. However, RFI merely quantifies variation rather than reflecting true feed efficiency. The issue lies in its failure to account for differences in growth and output, which are crucial in determining profitability. For example, two animals with the same RFI may differ significantly in total pounds gained, affecting their overall economic value in the feedlot.

Furthermore, biological efficiency — the concept underlying RFI — does not always align with economic efficiency. Different types of cattle can be profitable depending on the level of input received and their outputs. For example, cattle that consume more feed but achieve superior gains may be more valuable than those that consume less but grow at a suboptimal rate. While RFI may be related to profit in its attempt to identify more biologically efficient animals, it does not directly predict differences in profit. Because of this, there can be a large disparity between animals with the same RFI and actual profit. It is certainly possible for animals identified as being ideal for RFI to have a significantly poor ability to produce profit in the feedyard. A holistic approach that incorporates the economics of intake and growth is essential to optimizing profitability.

Producers should exercise caution when making genetic selections based solely on DMI reduction or RFI. While reducing feed intake may seem appealing, it can lead to unintended consequences such as smaller, slower-growing cattle that do not maximize economic returns. The $Gain prediction offers a more comprehensive selection tool by incorporating both intake and gain into a single economic framework.

$Gain and DMI are now available in the suite of EPD on Herdbook.org.

YOUR DATA. HIS FUTURE.

LIKE IT
OR NOT —
WE KNOW
THE TRUTH.

Data drives our beef decisions today. Data will drive it even more tomorrow.

So, how do you get maximum genetic awareness at a tolerable price point?

One on one consultation and multiple pricing options allow ASA's Total Herd Enrollment to meet your family's needs. Squeeze every drop of genetic knowledge from your herd to give your kids and grandkids the greatest chance at raising their own families in the beef business. There are options available to meet the needs of almost any production system and they can work with any breed type.

Rincker Simmentals is a seedstock cow-calf operation located in east-central Illinois. The primary herd raises seedstock replacement and show heifers along with select performance and promotional bulls. Several cows are targeted for show-quality steer and heifer calves, and our customers' success is our focus. Annually, Rincker Simmentals makes available the top selections from its calf crop, along with quality AI bred heifers.

Please feel free to contact us anytime for more information on our cattle, sales or upcoming events. Visitors are welcome anytime.

Private Treaty:
All breeding females and bulls are for sale private treaty. Contact Dan for more information.

*Harker Simmentals has grown and changed since the 1990s. Substance, structural soundness, and quality
EPD with an emphasis on maternal characteristics are a few things the Harkers use as building tools. Today, the operation consists of 150 head of purebred and percentage Simmental females and purebred Black Angus females. Fancy heifer calves are auctioned through the Field of Dreams
Sale now held at the Harker's farm.
Females purchased through the Field of Dreams Sale are exhibited by juniors from across the country.*

Rethinking the Role of Weight Ratios

by Lane Giess, PhD, ASA Geneticist

In an industry that often pays by the pound, it's easy to see why top weight ratios are viewed as desirable. But should we continue prioritizing these ratios with the advanced tools now available?

Many bull buyers still rely on weight ratios and adjusted weights as key decision-making tools. For years, these ratios have been a marketing staple, helping benchmark animals based on their performance within a contemporary group.

The Strengths of Weight Ratios

Weight ratios provide a quick, straightforward comparison of an animal's performance relative to others in the same group. In the absence of more data, these ratios can give breeders an immediate sense of an animal's physical performance, highlighting those that excel in traits like birth weight, weaning weight, or growth. This can be particularly appealing for short-term production goals.

The Weaknesses of Weight Ratios

However, weight ratios have limitations. They reflect how well an animal performed in a specific environment, not its genetic potential as a parent. An animal's phenotype — its appearance and performance — results from both genetics and environmental factors, such as management practices. An animal with a high weight ratio might simply benefit from superior management, rather than superior genetics. Relying too heavily on weight ratios can lead to paying more for an animal's management than its true genetic merit.

The Evolution of Genetic Evaluation

Today, breeding tools like Expected Progeny Differences (EPD) offer a clearer picture of an animal's genetic potential. Unlike weight ratios, which focus solely on performance, EPD integrate a range of information — pedigree, performance data, progeny records, and genomic data — offering a much more accurate prediction of how an animal will perform as a parent. Advances in statistical modeling, larger datasets, and genomic innovation have made EPD more reliable and precise than ever.

Moving Beyond Weight Ratios in Bull Selection

The goal for breeders is to improve the next generation. To do this effectively, we must use the best tools available. While weight ratios were useful in the past, they are becoming outdated in the era of precision livestock breeding. Tools like economic selection indexes, which balance all relevant EPD traits, offer a more comprehensive approach for making informed selection decisions that foster long-term genetic progress.

BUILD, BREED, ACHIEVE

BUILD YOUR SYSTEM. ACHIEVE YOUR GENETIC IMPROVEMENT GOALS.

– 6 Steps to Achieve Your Genetic Goals –

1. Clearly define breeding objectives

2. Use whole herd reporting

3. Properly define contemporary groups

4. Commit to thorough and accurate data collection and reporting on economically relevant traits

5. Use index-based selection

6. Incorporate genomics

GENOMIC TESTING SYSTEM TO REACH YOUR GOALS

“ You do not rise to the level of your goals.
You fall to the level of your systems. ”
— James Clear, Atomic Habits —

TOTAL HERD ENROLLEMENT

THE is a whole herd reporting program that benefits participants by providing improved female records, more informative EPD, and faster genetic improvement.

COW HERD DNA ROUNDUP

CHR facilitates DNA testing on entire cow herds to improve female trait predictions, improve all genomically enhanced EPD, and establish parentage markers on the entire cow herd for easier parent verification in future calves.

CALF CROP GENOMICS

CCG provides members with the opportunity to genotype entire calf crops, allowing participants to make informed genetic selection decisions based on the most accurate predictions available.

CARCASS EXPANSION PROJECT & CARCASS MERIT PROGRAM

CXP and CMP collect vital carcass data on genotyped calves, which improves carcass trait predictions and DNA marker predictions for all cattle in the IGS genetic evaluation and supports breeders in advancing their genetic programs.

1. Genotype all animals within a contemporary group
2. Genotype males and females
3. Incorporate genomic enhanced predictions into selection decisions as early as possible

Value Based Genetics Sale,
February 7, 2026, Decorah, IA.
Herd improving bulls, females, and embryo matings available at all times.

Our mission statement has become simply: "VALUE-BASED GENETICS." Years of selection for economically relevant traits has produced our current cow herd of heavily muscled 6-frame production cattle. We are proud of our cow herd and sires produced and would love to show them to you if in our area. Please call or stop in anytime.

Annual Production Sale
Fourth Wednesday in March
Victoria, KS

Diamond H Ranch began in the spring of 2007 when we purchased our cow herd, which consisted of 20 pair. Over the years we have focused on breeding to high-quality genetics, implementing superior hybrid vigor and getting the female right first. Our goal is to provide superior genetics that would satisfy the needs of any producer, while increasing our customer's bottom line. Red Angus and Red SimAngus™ cattle are the two breeds that we work with. In an industry with ever-changing demands to produce a higher-quality and more identifiable beef, we hope that our offering will aid in that quest.

We now have a cow herd consisting of 200 registered pairs in addition to our commercial heifer buy-back program. We are always striving to make improvements and the ranch has continued to expand.

Our cattle have seen some very tough conditions over the years, but have managed to stand strong in both the hard and prime conditions. Through it all, we have persevered and we hope that our cow herd will only continue to grow so that we may provide you with the high-quality genetics that you are seeking.

Again, we thank you for your interest and for giving us the opportunity to serve you as a seedstock producer.

Klein Ranch is located in northwest Kansas and has been raising black and red registered Simmental and SimAngus™ cattle since 2005. Our family has been raising cattle since the 1930s in Rawlins County, KS. We strive to create cattle that are moderate in frame with performance in growth and carcass. Cows have sound feet with calving ease, fertility, and mothering ability. We take a balanced approach in selecting EPD that will produce quality cattle that will fit the cattle-man's needs.

Visitors are always welcome.

Mission Statement:

The mission of Maxey Valley Farms is to communicate the importance and uniqueness of our heritage to subsequent generations and provide a strong foundation that will enable them to grow, prosper, and build on that legacy.

Please contact us with inquiries about our operation and cattle availability, semen sales, and pricing or to discuss this remarkable breed of beef cattle. I so fondly call "Traditional" Simmentals.

A photograph of a herd of cattle being driven by cowboys on horseback through a corral at sunset. The scene is bathed in the warm, golden light of the setting sun, with long shadows cast across the ground. In the foreground, three black and white cattle are prominently featured, looking towards the camera. They have yellow ear tags with numbers like 1701, 1702, and 3285. In the background, four cowboys on horseback are visible, guiding the herd. The corral is made of dark metal bars, and the sky is filled with soft, orange and yellow clouds.

Simply put, our mission is to produce great looking cattle with breed-leading numbers. Some would call this impossible. It's for sure a challenge. But it's the goal. We will never be satisfied, but we think about it, plan for it, and work at it every day!

The Crucial Role of Phenotypic Data in Genetic Predictions

by Ryan Boldt, PhD, IGS Lead Geneticist

In the age of genomic testing and genomically enhanced EPD, do we really need to collect phenotypes? This good question is asked often. In summary, the answer is yes.

The collection of phenotypic information is still necessary and arguably more necessary now than prior to the incorporation of genomics into single-step genetic evaluations.

To show an example of EPD prediction and the impact of genomics, some statistics were pulled from the IGS database to compare the average accuracy based on the amount of information included in the genetic evaluation. For this analysis, weaning weight (WW) was used as the example trait.

The following table displays the effect on the WW EPD accuracy of non-parent animals with various combinations of data available to the genetic evaluation.

Data Available on Non-Parent Animals	Avg. WW EPD Accuracy
Pedigree information only	0.14
Pedigree and individual phenotypic information only	0.25
Pedigree information and a genomic test (no phenotypes)	0.41
Pedigree information, genomic test, and phenotypic information	0.44

As shown, the accuracy of the EPD increases as more data is added. However, a common misconception is that genomics alone can replace phenotypic data. Previous studies have shown that if we do not continue to supply the evaluation with both genomic and phenotypic information, the accuracy of the genomic portion of the EPD calculation quickly diminishes. The ability of genomic data to predict and improve EPD accuracy is dependent on the amount of the variation that can be explained by the markers included in the model.

In terms of genetic prediction, the types of variation that are most important are phenotypic and genetic variation. Phenotypic variation is the amount of variation that is seen in the measurements that are collected on animals, or the total amount of variation. This variation is influenced by the genetics of the animal and the environment that the animal experiences. When it comes to genetic prediction and genetic improvement, the amount of variation that can be explained due to differences in inheritable genetics is known as additive genetic variation. The important distinction here is that we want to focus on the genetics that can be inherited from one generation to the next. In terms of genomics being the only source of data used for genetic prediction, then the genotype would be required to account for 100% of the genetic variance of the trait. While genotypes can account for a certain portion of the variation in each trait, the ability of genotype information to account for all genetic variation has not been achieved in any trait. Also, the amount of variation that the genotype can account for improves as more animals have both genotypes and phenotypes included in the evaluation.

There are, however, cases where genomic data may be the only feasible option for predicting genetic traits, especially when collecting phenotypic data is prohibitively expensive. In such cases, phenotypic data can be collected from a subset of animals with genomic data, which helps identify key genomic markers that influence the trait. These markers can then be applied to a larger group of animals.

To maximize the accuracy of genetic predictions, it is essential to include as much data as possible, especially when selecting young animals for breeding. While genomics offers significant benefits, phenotypic data remains crucial for achieving the highest possible accuracy in EPD. By combining both types of data, we can make more precise breeding decisions, which ultimately leads to better long-term genetic improvement.

See what the excitement is all about; LET SIMGENETICS WORK FOR YOU!

TECHNOLOGY

Under the American Simmental Association, we have access to cutting-edge DNA testing and genomically enhanced EPD's

JUNIOR SUPPORT

The MSA strongly believes in mentoring the youth and encourages their personal and professional growth within the beef industry

NETWORKING

The MSA has a very strong network of likeminded individuals that are more than just colleagues: We are a Family!

WHY SIMMENTAL?

The Simmental breed was developed to be a dual-purpose breed. While the breed isn't used quite the same way anymore, the functionality of the breed remains the same. By integrating SimGenetics in your herd, you can help to increase your operation's efficiency and profitability.

THE TOP REASONS TO USE SIMGENTICS:

- Lower birth weight and high calving ease
- Milking ability
- Big growth and heavy weaning weights
- Docility
- Stayability
- Lower feed costs in production operations due to moderate mature frame size.

Whether your operation's goal is production in the pasture or the feedlot, the ASA has developed a set of breed EPDs and Indexes that will help predict an animal's profitability within your herd to help you reach your goal.

Let SimGenetics work for you today!

Mr. Ishee Triple Trail Blazer 018H

Mission Statement:

To produce outstanding performance Simmentals and SimAngus™ that are easy calving, muscular with great maternal ability, and possess outstanding carcass characteristics that will make our customers money!

We are fourth-generation cattle producers in southern Mississippi. We started A.I.ing our cows to the very best performance Simmental bulls in the world in 1981. Our formula for success is a multi-trait approach of selecting cattle for: Calving Ease + Performance + Maternals + Carcass = $$$$.

Crucial Connection:

The Partnerships among State Associations and the ASA

by Callie Cooley

State associations play an integral role in informing the producers in their region about the values of SimGenetics. The ASA has ways to support them.

Cost Share Program

The Cost Share Program is designed to reach regional markets by assisting states in the advertising and promotion of SimGenetics. The program also provides support for the promotional activities of state associations to help increase their membership as well as their market share.

Each active state association is allocated $4,000 by the ASA to be used to offset advertising and promotion-related expenses. Associations that use the entire $4,000 are rewarded with an additional $1,000 to be used the following fiscal year. In order to receive cost share reimbursement, a state association's advertising must fall into accepted categories and meet the general guidelines. For example, all ads must be generic in nature, meaning at least 50% of the content must be generic information about the breed and cannot highlight specific sale animals and consignors.

Examples of accepted cost share items include print advertising, radio and TV advertising, display booths, internet and web advertising, breeders' directories and newsletters.

State association officers can request cost share reimbursement anytime throughout the fiscal year by sending a copy of the invoice and advertising example (e.g., Ad copy, link to website, etc.) to stateassoc@simmgene.com. Each year, the deadline to receive the final requests is July 15.

Advertisement templates that automatically meet the 50% generic content requirement are available to state associations for download at simmental.org.

Check-Off Dollar Program

The Check-Off Dollar Program is an incentive-based system that rewards state associations for breed promotion based on cattle registration numbers.

Quarterly Bonus Checks

State association officers can claim quarterly check-off dollars by sending ASA a list of the current officers, including email addresses, via an online submission form. Upon doing this, state associations receive 25 cents per registration recorded in that state. The money can be used for any state association activity.

Q1 ends September 30, Q2 ends December 31, Q3 ends March 31, Q4 ends June 30.

Yearly Bonus Checks

State associations are eligible for additional money (based on the state's total registration numbers) if certain promotional activities are completed throughout the year. The bonus activities include:

- Displaying a booth at a state or regional event
- Hosting a field day with ASA representation
- Sponsoring or hosting a junior educational event or Classic
- Participating in the ASA Cost Share Program
- Promoting the breed via a state association website
- Including SimGenetic promotional material in state mailings
- Coordinating with ASA staff to host a PTP Show

The additional money available is based on the number of bonus activities completed and ranges from an additional $0.10 per registration for one bonus promotional activity criterion to an additional $0.80 per registration for seven bonus promotional criteria.

Bonus dollars are paid at the end of each fiscal year, so state associations must fill out the activity report that indicates the bonus criteria completed by July 15. The maximum reward incentive a state can receive is $1.05 per registration (base of $0.25 per registration plus seven bonus criteria).

Details about the programs available to state Simmental associations can be found at simmental.org.

At Oval F Ranch, we believe in sound, productive, big-bodied cows that can have a calf and raise it. We use EPD and DNA testing to help improve economical traits and appreciate productive females with eye appeal. Since 1971, we've been serious about breeding quality Simmentals with COW POWER production in mind. We have turned 20 generations in our leading cow families using AI and ET. WE'LL SHARE!

Visitors Welcome. Plan a trip to tour the herd.

Educational Symposium and Recognition Dinner

Saturday, August 23

Held at the Hilton Garden Inn, attendees will have the opportunity to hear from topic experts as they discuss various aspects influencing the beef industry. The Educational Symposium will take a deep dive into the cow-calf sector, focusing on the balance between genetic efficiency and industry demands. Receiving positive feedback from past years' panel discussions, the panels and opportunity to engage with the experts will again be incorporated into the day.

Drs. Bryon Wiegand, Dale Woerner, and Ty Lawrence discuss beef carcass dynamics at the 2024 Fall Focus Educational Symposium.

This year's lineup will feature several faculty members from University of Missouri's well-known Animal Science department, including:

- ❖ Dr. Bryon Wiegand
- ❖ Dr. Jamie Courter
- ❖ Dr. Jordan Thomas
- ❖ Dr. Alison Meyer

And others, including:

- ❖ Dr. Randie Culbertson, Iowa State University
- ❖ Dr. Charley Martinez, University of Tennessee
- ❖ The IGS Science Team
- ❖ And more!

In the evening, the 2025 Lifetime Promoter and Golden Book award recipients will be recognized at the Recognition Dinner and Celebration. The Golden Book award is the Association's highest honor, and each year is awarded to three individuals or organizations that have made significant contributions to the development of the Simmental and Simbrah breeds. All are welcome to attend dinner and celebrate those being recognized.

The American Simmental-Simbrah Foundation will also hold their annual fundraiser. Proceeds from the fundraiser support future Fall Focus events. A huge thank you to those who participate.

Committee and Board Meetings

Sunday–Tuesday, August 24–26

Interested attendees are invited to stay and join the ASA Board of Trustees to discuss critical issues within the Activities and Events, Breed Improvement, Growth and Development, Policies and Procedures, and Simbrah Committees. Throughout these meetings, attendees will gain insights from staff presentations and committee reports. The board meeting continues on Monday and Tuesday.

Accommodations

The conference headquarters are located at the Hilton Garden Inn, 3300 Vandiver Drive, with a block of rooms available August 20–26. The special room rate will be available until July 29, or until the block is sold out, whichever comes first. A link to book your hotel room will be emailed upon completion of your registration.

The Hilton Garden Inn does not offer shuttle service to and from the airport; however, several rideshare companies, including Uber and Lyft, are available in Columbia.

Local Attractions

Bring the family and extend your trip to visit some of the great local attractions including:

- ❖ Boone County History & Culture Center
- ❖ "The Big Tree" – a 90-foot-tall Bur Oak, over 350 years old
- ❖ MKT Nature and Fitness Trail
- ❖ Historic home of John William "Blind Boone"
- ❖ Local Farmers Markets
- ❖ The Stockyards & Arcade District
- ❖ Rock Bridge Memorial and Finger Lakes State Park

Some feel it is all about performance.

Some feel it is all about the ribbons.

At Begger's Diamond V Ranch, we feel it is all about efficiency and profit. Our Black Simmental, SimAngus™ and Angus breeding program is a balanced approach that puts the cow/calf man first. You will find our homozygous black and polled cattle to be easy calving, easy fleshing, deep bodied, maternal, efficient, productive, and profitable. We pay attention to all the economically relevant traits that may or may not be measured by numbers alone. Our cattle are bred to withstand harsh environments and extreme temperatures. When you invest in Begger's Diamond V Ranch genetics you can expect eye-appealing, low-maintenance, moderate-framed cattle with excellent maternal instinct, and udder quality, tolerable dispositions and cattle that have what it takes to weigh up at sale time and demand sale-topping prices. They will possess top feedlot performance and acceptable carcass values, and most importantly produce a tender, enjoyable eating experience for the consumer that knows very little about raising cattle.

Plan to attend our 49th Annual Production Sale February 4, 2026, where over 50 long-age 18-month-old and 120 stout yearling bulls sell, every one black and polled and all ranch-raised in an environment that separates cattle that become problematic; yes, they are backed by a guarantee second to none.

J&C Bull Sale
January 24, 2026
Rybin Building, Washington
County Fairgrounds, Arlington, NE

At J&C Simmentals we believe quality and performance are more important than percentage. We offer quality bulls from purebred to 1/4 blood for both the registered producer as well as the commercial cowman. We guarantee our bulls and feel confident you will find something in the offering that will fit your needs. Our females are fancy, high-performance females that will fit any operation. Stop by anytime and we'll be happy to discuss cattle and the cattle industry with you.

Annual Bull Sale –
February 20, 2026, Creighton, NE

Sandy Acres Simmental is one of Nebraska's premier Simmental operations. Celebrating 50 years of breeding Simmentals with calving ease and growth with maternal excellence. The cow herd is primarily purebred polled Simmental, red and black, with some F1 Simmental-Angus calves and a few full Fleckvieh cows. With high-demand sires King Pin, Zero Gravity, and Deep Rock, the Sandy Acres Simmental herd has some of the most in-demand bulls sold in the Plains region.

Sale:
Bull Sale – March 2026

Western Cattle Source strives to produce Simmental and Angus cattle that will succeed in the show ring, if so desired, but most importantly will perform under range conditions and excel in the feedlot and on the rail. They strive to produce bulls and females that will benefit the seed stock producer and the quality conscious commercial cattle-men and women, because they are their bread and butter. They have bulls and females scattered from Montana to Virginia in commercial herds, purebred and club calf operations. They are all satisfied customers.

Creating Quality Commercial Cattle

by Lilly Platts

North Carolina commercial producer Jamie Dail goes above and beyond in collecting, submitting, and analyzing data for Triple D Farms. His herd of commercial SimGenetics females are expected to consistently produce high-performing calves each year.

Growing the Family Business

Jamie Dail has built a uniform, consistent cow herd in a region where high-performing commercial cow-calf herds are not common. Profit is the ultimate measure of success in the commercial cow-calf business, and by focusing on collecting, submitting, and analyzing data, the Dail family has met their goal of making a living in the beef industry.

Dail grew up in agriculture, with his grandparents operating a laying farm. They always had a small herd of cattle around, which Dail was interested in from an early age. Following high school, he and his wife Maria purchased two cows, kicking off their own career in the cattle business. "That was our start," Dail shares.

Officially bitten by the cattle business bug, they kept purchasing cows and land as they were able. "As my grandparents got older, I took over the cows they had and we started buying a few here and there, and land as we could. It snowballed from that point," Dail recalls.

Dail has since accumulated a sizable tract of continuous land, and the cow herd has grown to 800 head. Located only 30 minutes inland from the Atlantic, Triple D Farms is in a unique, productive area. Hot, often humid summers and cool winters are characteristic of southeast North Carolina. On average, the area receives the most rain from July to September; drought and heat can be a challenge, sometimes requiring early weaning.

Focusing on Profit

In the beginning, Dail's cattle were a range of breeds; understanding that he would need to add value to make a profit, he identified and worked toward a well-thought-out breeding program.

"When I first started making breeding decisions it was out of the ordinary," Dail explains. "People in our area never had a breeding season. They just turned bulls out, and you got what you got. There wasn't a paper trail. That was just normal because everyone was doing it for a hobby."

Dail also knew early on that they needed to add value to their calf crop, and go beyond simply selling through the local auction barn. Taking advantage of heterosis was one essential part of this. Triple D Farms first introduced SimGenetics to their herd around 25 years ago.

In addition to the benefits of crossbreeding, Dail points to the disposition, growth, and heat tolerance SimGenetics offer. "Disposition is a big deal for us. I also want my calves to shed off, and I like how they grow," Dail says.

Data was also an important factor in improving and expanding the business. "I probably have as much data, aside from genomics, on my cattle as any seedstock breeder," Dail shares.

From birth to weaning, every piece of data that can be collected is saved and utilized later on in breeding decisions. Females are also tracked closely, and anything that isn't consistently producing a good calf is culled immediately. Triple D Farms keeps back a large group of females each year to account for this strict culling. Collecting data is a family effort, with Maria ensuring that information is saved and available chute-side when breeding and culling decisions are being made.

Dail's longtime relationship with SimGenetics seedstock breeder, Gibbs Farms, has also been important in improving and growing the cow herd. Located near Ranburne, Alabama, Gibbs Farms has a long history with the breed, and is a trusted source for top-producing SimGenetics bulls.

In addition to non-negotiable phenotypic traits, like foot structure and soundness, Dail relies on the All Purpose Index ($API) when choosing herd bulls. The $API index balances a number of traits, which works well both for the terminal side of the business and for keeping back replacement heifers.

Having a good relationship with a seedstock provider is extremely important for commercial producers, and Dail has pointed to the quality of Gibbs bulls, as well as their customer service. "When you spend the kind of money we do on bulls I like to know that they believe in their product enough that they're going to stand behind it," he shares.

Yon Family Farms, located near Ridge Spring, South Carolina, is the Dail family's go-to source for quality Angus genetics.

Triple D Farms also participates in other value-added programs, including Global Animal Partnership (GAP) certification. This program involves periodic visits to the farm by third-party auditors to assess pasture access, the health of pastures, the age calves are castrated and weaned, and more. This certification allows the Dail family to receive a premium per head each year.

A Family Affair

The entire Dail family is involved with the cow herd. Their oldest daughter, Fallon, lives close to the farm, and is frequently there to help work cows. She and her husband, Nolan, have two young children named Ansley and Noah.

Son Cody and his fiancée, Grace Russ, are also extremely involved in the family business. "My son lives and breathes cattle," Dail shares.

Youngest daughter, Taylor, recently graduated from North Carolina State with a degree in agricultural business and is now working for AgCarolina Farm Credit.

Dail's wife, Maria, has been there from the beginning, and is in charge of collecting, tracking, and submitting data. "She's probably more into the paperwork than I am," he shares.

Maria has also implemented several practices important to the success of the farm, including keeping several milk cows around to nurse orphan calves. Calving season always presents challenges, and from twins to cows that have difficulty calving, orphaned calves are unavoidable. By having several Jersey milk cows on hand, these calves that would otherwise need to be bottle fed and weaned early are able to nurse and grow like normal. As Dail explains, the price of a Jersey milk cow far outweighs the cost of milk replacer and lost profit from an underperforming calf. "These calves can be just as good as they'd be on their mama," he explains.

Having his family involved makes the challenge and daily work involved with being in the cattle business worth it. "My family seems to love it," Dail concludes. "We have a barn where the horses are in front of our house, with a big room inside. All of my kids and grandkids show up there every afternoon to eat. As long as they keep wanting to do that every day, I'm a rich man."

Dail speaks with ASA's Chip Kemp during the National Cattlemen's Beef Association conference. Scan the code to watch an interview with Dail for the International Genetic Solutions Targeting the End Point feature.

41st Annual Sale
Friday, February 13, 2026

Your commercial bull headquarters, along with breed-leading herdsires! All backed by the TNT 100% guarantee! No creep feed! We invite everyone to come to the ranch to view the cattle and see the way we manage our herd. We are very proud of our cattle, and feel you will be proud of "The Explosive Difference" they will make for you. We truly have a passion for this business, and love breeding cattle and the never-ending pursuit to try to make them better. One of our greatest blessings over the past 40 years is the wonderful people we have met, and the dear friends we have made in this business.

ASA PTP RING OF CHAMPIONS 2025–2026

Only the National PTP Shows are eligible for ASA PTP Ring of Champions points.

Shows include: 2025 American Royal
2025 North American International Livestock Exposition
2026 Cattlemen's Congress
2026 National Western Stock Show
2026 Fort Worth Stock Show
2026 Dixie National Livestock Show

Award Divisions

A Heifer and Bull of the Year will be awarded in each of the following divisions:

- ◆ Purebred Simmental
- ◆ Percentage Simmental
- ◆ Fullblood Simmental
- ◆ Purebred Simbrah
- ◆ Percentage Simbrah

*No awards will be presented in a category if fewer than three animals within that category earn points at multiple events.

*No awards will be presented in a category if fewer than three events recognize that breed division.

Qualifications

- ◆ Exhibitors must be active members in good standing with the American Simmental Association.
- ◆ Each animal must meet the breed registration requirements for the division in which it is shown.
- ◆ Animals and their exhibitors must abide by the rules of the show(s) in which they participate.
- ◆ All Ring of Champions award winners must, at minimum, complete an ultra-low-density DNA test before awards are given.

Additional Information

PTP Coordinator:
Chance Ujzdowski

chanceu@simmgene.com

The American Simmental Association's Progress Through Performance (PTP) program reflects an industry reality that producers routinely balance between phenotypic evaluation and scientifically proven, industry-relevant EPD and indices.

Each member of a eight-delegate panel – consisting of a representative from each of the six National PTP Shows, the reigning ASA Herdsman of the Year, and the collective AJSA Board – provides ranked lists of five judges' names. These names are reviewed and approved by the Activities & Events (A&E) Committee and the full Board. Once the list is approved, it is sent back to the state associations of the respective Major PTP Shows for review and judge selection for the corresponding show season. Judges are selected with the first two picks given to the AJSA National Classic, and the following picks in order of the previously used National SimGenetics Show rotation. Approved judges are highly esteemed cattle evaluators and are provided EPD and indices on each entry.

The list of PTP-approved judges, the PTP judge nomination process, and pertinent PTP show information can be found at simmental.org.

ASA Ring of Champions

The ASA PTP Ring of Champions program recognizes the most successful SimGenetics show cattle exhibited at the National PTP Shows for each show season: American Royal, North American International Livestock Expo, Cattlemen's Congress, National Western Stock Show, Fort Worth Stock Show, and Dixie National Livestock Show. After awarding points for placings in classes, divisions, and grand and reserve champions, the highest point earners are crowned as royalty after the final show of the season. Purebred, Percentage and Fullblood awards are presented at NAILE, and Simbrah awards are presented at Cattlemen's Congress.

The PTP Ring of Champions recognizes the best of the best that compete in the National PTP Shows. We are honored to recognize the champions from the most recently concluded season.

Note: There was no Percentage Simbrah Bull of the Year. The division did not qualify, as only two bulls earned points at multiple events.

Sale:

Bull Auction Sale at our farm
March 12, 2026 along with open registered heifers.

We raise breeding stock with an emphasis on performance; our cattle are designed to work for commercial producers, and especially in Angus-based herds. We started DNA testing many years ago, and today the majority of our herd is backed by parentage testing and genomically enhanced EPDs. This has resulted in cattle with great EPDs, and enhanced accuracy. We invite you to come see us!

51st Annual Production Sale
February 18, 2026

Hart Simmentals is located in beautiful Frederick, and is a fourth-generation performance-driven purebred Simmental seedstock operation. Hart Simmentals focuses on exceptional maternal traits, stemming from over 50 years of scrutinizing superior matings that possess the most elite genetics in the industry, while meeting the increasing demands of excellence that is sought out yearly by seedstock producers and the ever-widening commercial cattle industry! Our family has a passion and a true love of breeding the finest quality genetics and have a never-ending pursuit to make great cattle greater. Stop out to the farm anytime for a tour and a visit! And don't forget to visit with Justin about our new semen lineup and your semen needs.

King of the Range Production Sale
First Thursday in February

Developed by Cattlemen for Cattlemen

The commercial cattleman's source for functional, honest, and problem-free cattle. We believe bulls that stay PAY, and that a focus on longevity and quality in our herd will ultimately pay in yours.

MF / BMF KISSES

MF/BMF HILLJACK x ASR LONGEVITY

Kisses is our first Hilljack daughter to enter production. A modest-sized female bound with structural integrity down to her perfectly shaped toes, she could be the ideal female for today's industry. Progeny, embryos, and flushes available private treaty, or watch for her influence in this year's Seedstock Connection Sale

DAM OF KISSES

Heifer sexed embryos by Hilljack available.

FOCR FAR OUT LARK

HOOK'S GALILEO x BRIDLE BIT MR G9112

Lark was our $25,000 selection and the third high seller overall from the 2024 Bridle Bit All Terrain Bull Sale. She's a big-numbered, genomically balanced female with 14 EPDs in the top 10% of the breed and the look of a real brood cow. Boasting a top 2% $API and top 4% $GN, Lark's

#2 genomic match for genetic progress through RightMatePlus was HILLJACK, and the first proof of that mating is special. Watch for Lark progeny, pregnancies, and embryos or meet us on the ground floor and flush her to the bull of your choice.

SPECIAL THANKS to Chad Cook and Bridle Bit Simmentals, Walsh, CO for the purchase of MF/BMF MILKSHAKE M34J, our donation to the Tennessee BEEFoundation.

MF/BMF HILLJACK H13F

OWNED BY HUITT FARMS, BISMARCK, MO

Hilljack's pedigree is stacked for maternal greatness: Beacon x Bounty x Tanker x Preferred Beef x Legacy x 3C Wally x Irish Black Knight. He is especially quiet natured, sound structured, and athletic on the move. Hilljack's elite EPDs rank him in the top 20% of the breed for 14 traits with 17 traits above breed average, and he boasts top 1% projections for CE, MCE, Stay, and REA with a top 2% $API. Now calling Missouri home, semen is available from ORigen or directly from Martin Farms.

Red meat yield, an upgraded yield grading system, bigger finished weights, and more.

by Lilly Platts

Change is inevitable in the beef industry, and recent conversations about potential updates to the yield grading system, a push for heavier finished weights, and a shift to considering whole-animal red meat yield leave many questions about how producers throughout the supply chain could be affected. At Fall Focus 2024, ASA's Chip Kemp led Drs. Ty Lawrence, Dale Woerner, and Bryon Wiegand through a series of questions about these potential changes. This conversation took place during the Educational Symposium, allowing attendees to also ask the panelists questions.

Lawrence kicked off the conversation about measuring red meat yield, discussing the implications of the intense focus on ribeye area that has been standard in the industry for some time. Single-trait focus, whether in EPD or phenotype selection, usually has a negative impact on other traits; in this case, overall animal muscling. Currently, the push for bigger finished cattle has caused some producers to put even more emphasis on ribeye in order to continue producing animals that meet yield grade standards. Lawrence shared that under the current system, ribeye has to be a primary focus for profit. A new yield grade system will likely focus more on whole-animal red meat yield, as opposed to individual measurements like ribeye. If a shift toward whole-animal muscling is going to take place, the industry needs to know beforehand. "Whatever the new system may become, all seedstock and commercial producers, all cattle feeders, and everyone upstream needs to know what the new criteria are," Lawrence shared.

Woerner added that the beef production cycle makes these conversations extremely relevant today, as breeding decisions producers are currently making won't come to fruition for three years. He predicts that any changes to how yield is measured will take place in three to five years. "You're making decisions today that may match up to a different yield metric," Woerner said.

Dr. Wade Shafer asked the panelists about their confidence in these changes coming within three to five years. Woerner shared that he is extremely confident because packers are going to continue moving the needle, whether the USDA (the current third-party oversight agency) keeps up or not.

Woerner cautioned that producers should not decrease their emphasis on ribeye, but rather add emphasis to whole-animal muscling on top of their current criteria. "I would never say to decrease your emphasis on ribeye," Woerner shared. "But, you're going to have to increase emphasis on total conformation and phenotype, and undoubtedly that's good for our industry."

Feed efficiency is a positive reason for increasing the emphasis on red meat yield. Woerner shared, "If you talk to a growth biologist and a muscle biologist, they will tell you that the best way to improve weight gain and feed efficiency is by improving muscularity. Muscle takes four and a half calories per gram to produce and fat takes time. So, we know that it's far more efficient to put muscle on an animal than fat," Woerner said.

Trait selection is a constant balancing act, and putting more emphasis on overall muscling would require producers to evaluate how other traits are affected. Woerner shared that a new yield system could put negative pressure on fat. Consumers demand a marbled, tender, flavorful product, which means this could pose a challenge for producers. "What it means is you [producers] are going to be expected to produce animals with less fat externally and more marbling," Woerner explained. "Everyone recognizes that we have to maintain genetics for marbling, but we have to do it quicker. The animals are going to have to get there faster, with fewer days on feed and less external fat. It's a big ask."

In addition to potential feed efficiency improvements, technology now makes it possible to accurately measure an animal's total phenotype. Instead of taking individual measurements throughout the animal, X-ray and 3D imaging can capture a holistic measurement. Woerner added that a technology currently exists using radar to measure the conformation of live cattle.

Producers currently have metrics for selecting weaning and yearling weight, marbling, and other carcass traits. A metric for whole-animal-muscling does not exist, which poses a challenge for breed associations and cow-calf producers. Woerner shared that it is too early to give producers advice for trait selection, but anatomically, they do know that the primary drivers of red meat yield include round dimensionality, hindquarter muscling, and forearm and shank circumference. Another challenge is the lack of data. Producers have been diligently collecting measurements on other traits for many years, which allows for a robust, accurate dataset that can be used for future selection. Establishing standards for capturing and submitting these new measures will be important.

Woerner clarified that moving toward a system prioritizing overall red meat yield should not encourage producers to forget about traits like marbling, or to push their cattle to a point where fertility, calving ease, and other critical traits are negatively impacted.

Finished carcass weights will continue to increase in coming years.

The number of cattle a packer can process every day is limited, which has influenced the push for heavier finished animals.

Finished carcass weight is an additional consideration. Lawrence shared that he foresees desired finished weights continuing to increase into the future. “In my opinion, no one in this room will be alive when we hit a plateau,” he shared. “We’re going to continue to add weight for the foreseeable future. Someday a 1,500-pound carcass will be normal, and we’re not that far away.”

“Someday a 1,500-pound carcass will be normal, and we’re not that far away.”

Beef processors are limited to killing 390 animals per hour, meaning the heavier the carcass the better they can keep up with increasing costs of operating each year. “They [cattle] have to come in a little heavier day after day, and year after year, to dilute an increasing cost structure that is coming at them just from inflation, if nothing else,” Lawrence added.

Crossbreeding has long been a tool for producing heavier cattle — Simmental genetics were first used in the US for this exact reason — and the practice could be even more important in the future. Wiegand ran a SimAngus cow herd for some time, and has experience with pushing performance while maintaining important convenience traits like calving ease. He explained that with the help of a reproductive physiologist he was able to focus on crossbred females that were “curve benders,” meaning they were moderate in size, efficient, bred back, and still produced large calves. “I leaned into this hybridization model and strongly believe in crossbreeding,” he said.

Crossbreeding has long been a tool for producing heavier cattle — Simmental genetics were first used in the US for this exact reason — and the practice could be even more important in the future.

International Genetic Solutions (IGS), which allows for genetic comparison across many breeds and promotes crossbreeding, could also be a valuable tool in navigating these potential changes and challenges. “When I stand in front of 525 undergraduates in animal science I don’t talk about breeds. I talk about biological types of cattle,” Wiegand shared. “If we think about biological types of cattle, I think you [SimGenetics] are in a really good spot, which is why I gravitated to the commercial side of this breed as a biological type of cattle.”

The question of corporate systems was also raised. Corporations like Walmart are establishing their own packing plants, which allows them to have more influence on the entire beef supply chain. With control over the entire system, a corporation like Walmart can demand what they want for their specific model, whether it fits the larger industry’s system or not.

Sustainability is also a frequent topic of conversation in the industry that is strongly tied to consumer demand. Many sustainability conversations point to cow size and efficiency as priorities. Smaller cow size can be beneficial in sustainability efforts, but focusing too much on that area can lead to a decrease in overall calf weight yield each year. Woerner added that urban sprawl and the continual decrease in pasture and tillable acres should be considered. Essentially, fewer cattle need to do more with fewer resources while also meeting industry and consumer demand. "It's a balance, and I think supply and demand will drive the definition of what we produce," he said.

Lawrence added that much of the pressure toward larger carcass weights is going to fall on the feeder, meaning cow-calf producers don't need to place intense focus on increasing weights themselves. "The cattle feeder is going to take care of the bigger carcass...the cattle feeder is where the giant change in carcass weight is coming from, and the math in their economics says to make them bigger year-over-year," he explained.

The conversation closed with a brief discussion about liver abscesses and respiratory heart failure in the feedlot. Woerner shared that research around liver abscesses is currently ongoing, but is showing that the heritability is under 10%. This suggests that an animal's likelihood of developing liver abscesses in the feedlot is largely environmental. "It's hugely environmental and predominantly management-driven," Woerner said.

Lawrence added that gut health is strongly tied to the instance of liver abscesses. Dairy cattle demonstrate this point. Around 27% of beef cattle that have been on feed for 200 days have a 27% instance of liver abscesses; in dairy cattle, it's 60%. Dairy-raised calves are pulled off the cow immediately and placed in a confined area. A calf's rumen isn't developed for six weeks, but in many instances these calves are being fed steam-flaked corn immediately. "That system is arguably to the detriment of gut health early on, and that manifests itself throughout their lifetime," Lawrence shared.

Fall Focus 2025 will be held August 22–26, 2025, in Columbia, Missouri. To learn more about this free educational event please visit fallfocus.org.

About the panelists:

Dr. Ty E. Lawrence is a professor of animal science at West Texas A&M University (WTAMU). He was raised on a cow-calf operation near Dalhart, Texas, before pursuing formal education at West Texas A&M University (BS, MS) and Kansas State University (PhD). Lawrence spent two years with Smithfield in the position of research manager for pork harvest and processing facilities on the Eastern Seaboard before entering his academic career. In his current position at West Texas A&M University, he has taught over 2,500 undergraduate and graduate students in 14 different animal, food, and meat science courses. In addition, Dr. Lawrence is the director of the WTAMU Beef Carcass Research Center, which annually evaluates 200,000+ cattle for a variety of research projects. His research activities focus on improving the yield, quality, and safety of red meat products and have resulted in the publication of more than 115 peer-reviewed scientific journal manuscripts.

Dr. Bryon Wiegand is a native of Cairo, Missouri, and is currently professor of Animal Science at the University of Missouri (MU). He has served as a technical advisor to the Missouri Association of Meat Processors, supervises the MU Collegiate Meats Judging Team, and oversees operation of the Mizzou Meat Market (a full-line meat processing plant under USDA inspection). In 2015, he assumed the role of State Meats Extension Specialist. Wiegand has been recognized by his peers with multiple national teaching awards, most notably two career teaching honors, the American Society of Animal Science Distinguished Teacher Award, and the American Meat Science Association Distinguished Teacher Award. He was named a Kemper Teaching Fellow at MU in 2014. Wiegand was appointed as Associate Division Director in Animal Science in 2019, and made responsible for coordinating research farms and auxiliary units as well as animal science outreach to stakeholders in Missouri and beyond. In 2021, he was appointed Director of the Division of Animal Science.

Dr. Dale R. Woerner serves as the Cargill Endowed Professor in Sustainable Meat Science in the Department of Animal and Food Sciences at Texas Tech University. Dr. Woerner earned his BS and MS degrees in animal science from Texas Tech University in 2003 and 2005, respectively, and earned his PhD in animal science and meat science from Colorado State University in 2009. He served on the faculty at Colorado State University for nine years, joining the faculty at Texas Tech University in his current position in 2018. He has conducted more than 15 million dollars in industry-funded research and has published more than 300 scholarly works, including peer-reviewed manuscripts and technical reports in the area of meat science.

Yardley Cattle Co. 53rd Annual Bull Sale
March 2026, Beaver UT

Yardley Cattle Company raises deep, thick, moderate made, easy fleshing, low-maintenance cattle with quiet dispositions, excellent udders in the cows and well-developed testicles in our bulls with sound, smooth joints and ideal foot and leg structure. We have been A.Ling to the best bulls we can find or raise for 55 years. Our cattle forage year-round, calve unassisted on desert winter ranges, and are bred with the commercial cattleman in mind to thrive on rangelands, excel in the feedlot, and perform in the pasture with the style and eye appeal to compete in the show ring.

The Efficiency vs. Demand Paradox: Navigating the Future of Beef Production

by Dr. Jon DeClerk

Packers continue to demand heavier finished cattle, while cow-calf producers are faced with the challenge of maintaining efficiency, longevity, and profitability in their cow herds. How can producers balance these two seemingly contradictory demands?

With record high prices across all classes of cattle, the beef industry is buzzing with both excitement and uncertainty. Cow-calf producers, in particular, find themselves at a crossroads. The industry is caught in a paradox — balancing the proven efficiency of moderate-framed cows with the market's growing demand for larger, heavier cattle.

Research consistently shows that moderate-sized cows excel in efficiency. They wean a higher percentage of their body weight, bounce back quicker for rebreeding, and remain productive in the herd longer than their larger, heavier counterparts. Yet, market pressures are pulling in the opposite direction. With the US cow herd at its smallest since 1961 and retail beef demand surging, packers and feedlots are calling for heavier calves and larger carcasses to keep the supply chain humming.

This contradiction — where efficiency supports one approach while demand pushes for another — leaves many in the industry searching for answers. That's why, at the American Simmental Association's 2025 Fall Focus in Columbia, Missouri, on August 22–23, we're tackling this challenge head-on. Join us as we explore strategies to help cow-calf producers stay profitable while staying true to what science tells us works.

The Case for Moderate-Framed Cows

Every environment presents its own challenges, and what works in one region may not in another. A cow that thrives on the vast, semi-arid rangelands of New Mexico isn't necessarily the best fit for the Upper Midwest — and vice versa. For the sake of this discussion, I'll focus on what holds true in most production settings.

Let's talk numbers. For years, research has reinforced a simple truth: moderate-framed cows — typically weighing between 1,100 and 1,300 pounds — are the most cost-efficient engines of the cow-calf business in most settings. A 2017 study from Ohio State University found that cows well-matched to their environment, especially those on the smaller to mid-sized end of the spectrum, excel at converting forage into pounds of weaned calf.¹

The key metric here is weaning efficiency — the proportion of a cow's body weight she converts into a calf at weaning. Research consistently shows that moderate-framed cows wean an impressive 45–50% of their body weight, while larger cows (1,500 pounds and up) often drop below 40%.¹ That gap adds up fast, especially when feed costs are factored in.

In commercial operations, where efficiency drives profitability, bigger isn't always better — despite market trends favoring larger cattle. While seedstock operations may supplement calves to maximize genetic potential, commercial producers generally rely solely on forage and milk. In these settings, moderate cows simply wean more efficiently, making them the more sustainable choice.

Fertility is another major advantage. Moderate-framed cows tend to maintain their body condition scores (BCS) more easily through tough seasons — whether it's a harsh winter or a drought — because they require less forage to sustain themselves. Research from the University of Arkansas found that cows with a BCS of 5 to 6 at calving re-bred within 60 days at a 90% success rate, compared to just 70% for cows with a BCS of 4 or lower.² Simply put, smaller cows hit that optimal condition more reliably with fewer inputs, leading to higher fertility rates and tighter calving intervals — both key drivers of profitability.

Then there's longevity, the ultimate cost-saver. Moderate-framed cows stay productive longer. A 2011 analysis by Kent Olson in BEEF Magazine found that smaller to mid-sized cows often remain in the herd for ten to 12 years, while their larger counterparts start breaking down — whether from joint issues or metabolic strain — around 7–9 years.³ That's two or three additional calf crops per cow. Fewer replacements mean lower development costs and more time keeping proven, high-performing females in the herd.

In an industry where every dollar matters, the long-term benefits of moderate cows can't be ignored.

The Market Pushes for Bigger Cattle

Last year's Fall Focus in Amarillo explored the feedlot and packing sectors' growing push for larger, heavier cattle. While carcass weights have steadily increased over the past few decades, the past couple of years have seen a notable surge driven by the simple dynamics of supply and demand.

As of January, the US cow herd shrank to a historic low of just 27.9 million head,⁴ while beef demand has never been stronger. Retail sales hit a record high in 2024, climbing 8% over the previous year.⁵ With fewer cattle available and demand soaring, packers and feedlots have made their priorities clear: they need bigger cattle and heavier carcasses to keep the supply chain moving.

The data speaks for itself. CattleFax reported that hot carcass weights hit a record high in 2024, surpassing 900 pounds — a full 36 pounds above the three-year average.⁶ Feedlots benefit from these heavier cattle, as greater growth potential translates to more pounds gained in the yard, diluting initial purchase price and improving margins. Packers win, too: more beef per hook means greater plant efficiency and a steadier supply to meet strong consumer demand.

This demand inevitably trickles down to the cow-calf sector. Producers are tempted to retain those big, growthy heifers from top-end bulls, knowing their calves will generate serious pay weight at weaning. But here's where things get complicated. Those big bulls can often sire daughters that mature into 1,500-plus-pound cows, significantly increasing the herd's feed and forage demand. A pasture that once supported a moderate-framed herd is suddenly stretched thin, with cows consuming 20–25% more feed per head.⁷ And when the feed / hay bill arrives, efficiency — and often profitability — start to erode.

The Hidden Cost of Increasing Cow Size

Let's break it down. A 1,200-pound cow in good condition (BCS 5) typically requires about 24 pounds of dry matter per day — roughly 2% of her body weight — depending on forage quality and weather conditions.⁸ Increase that to a 1,600-pound cow, and daily intake jumps to 32 pounds. Over a 120-day winter feeding season, that's an extra 960 pounds of hay per cow. Scale that up to a 100-head herd, and you're looking at an additional 48 tons of hay — or a much steeper feed bill. And that's assuming your summer pastures can keep up. Bigger cows graze harder, increasing the risk of overstocking, especially in dry years.

But the challenges don't stop at feed costs. The bigger daughters of those high-growth bulls don't just require more feed — they're often less resilient. A 2019 study from Oklahoma State University found that larger-framed cows have lower rebreeding success in tough environments, leading to herd pregnancy rates as much as 10% lower than their moderate-framed counterparts.⁹ So, while those heavier calves typically bring in more dollars at weaning, they often come at a cost: reduced weaning efficiency (weaning a lower percentage of a cow's body weight), more open cows, and a shorter herd lifespan. In many instances for commercial cow-calf producers, it's the classic case of winning the battle but losing the war.

Striking the Right Balance: Genetic Supplier's Role

So, what's the path forward for seedstock producers? Again, every operation is unique, and there's no one-size-fits-all approach. What thrives in North Dakota won't necessarily succeed in Oklahoma — and vice versa. Fortunately, the data suggest that Simmental breeders are already moving in the right direction. A study from the US Meat Animal Research Center (USMARC) in Clay Center, Nebraska, shows that Simmental-sired calves have a slight advantage in weaning weight over Angus-sired calves, yet their mature cow counterparts weigh in at 74 pounds lighter than those sired by Angus bulls.¹⁰ This indicates that growth and efficiency don't have to be mutually exclusive — Simmental genetics prove they can deliver both.

The key is having an effective breeding strategy. For commercial cow-calf producers, crossbreeding is virtually non-negotiable. Heterosis doesn't just boost weaning weights by 10% — it increases cow lifetime production by an impressive 23%.¹¹ &¹² That's a massive advantage for long-term profitability, giving ranchers more pounds of calf over a cow's career without ballooning input costs.

In many cases, it may be worth considering a more structured approach to mating cattle. High-performance bulls with big growth EPD may produce sale barn standouts, but are they building sustainable herds? Their daughters will be the backbone of commercial operations for a decade or more; if they grow too big to thrive on available resources, profitability takes a hit.

Perhaps a plausible solution is greater differentiation, developing bulls specifically for maternal or terminal purposes. Research from the University of Nebraska shows that selecting sires with strong maternal traits — like stayability and moderate mature size — can extend cow longevity by one to two years compared to high-growth sires.¹³ This study not only confirms the premise behind $API but also highlights the value of retaining females from maternal-focused sires. This approach builds a more efficient, longer-lasting cow herd, while still allowing producers to capitalize on high-growth genetics through complementary terminal sires.

The fix isn't about abandoning performance, it's about strategic selection. Mating moderate-framed females with top-tier maternal traits (CE, Stay, and $API), to terminal-focused sires ($TI), can generate feeder calves at the top of the market without compromising cow efficiency.

Packers continue to demand heavier finished cattle.

It's not about choosing sides in the industry debate. It's about bridging the gap.

Where Do We Go from Here?

Here's the challenge: science proves moderate cows win on cost and longevity, but the market demands bigger, heavier cattle. Cow-calf producers are stuck in the middle, trying to stay profitable without stretching their resources too thin. With numerous different environments, it goes without saying there's no one-size-fits-all solution, but there are effective strategies. Maybe it's leveraging crossbreeding — Simmental's strong suit — to merge efficiency with growth. Or maybe it's working closely with your seedstock supplier to match the right bulls to the right job: maternal sires for herd longevity and terminal sires for top-dollar feeder calves.

As the industry wrestles with these competing pressures, producers need data-driven strategies to stay both profitable and relevant. That's exactly what we'll tackle at Fall Focus 2025. Expect real-world insights from those who've mastered the balance between cow efficiency and market demand. We'll break down the latest research, hear from the IGS Science Team on cutting-edge genetic tools, and explore practical solutions to keep operations in the black.

This isn't just theory — it's an actionable, industry-shaping discussion. Mark your calendars — this is one conversation you don't want to miss.

Linking Simmental Genetics to the Beef Business!

Back in 1987, when the American Simmental Association decided to bring its official magazine in-house, the staff was given a mission: "to provide communication, education, and information" to the membership.

First, under the banner of the Register, and later when SimTalk, and, for a time, American Simbrah, were added under the larger umbrella of ASA Publication, Inc., the editorial and advertising staff has upheld the original mission.

Today, numerous other responsibilities have been added, including an Annual Report, a Membership Directory, Sire Source, sale catalogs, press releases, and web marketing, among many others.

Communication

- ◆ ASA's magazines, the Register and SimTalk, keep members up-to-date on industry events, fellow breeders' sales, and state association events, while also allowing members the opportunity to communicate their events.

Education

- ◆ ASA taps into the rich knowledge of the staff by creating educational articles, and gives members access to additional educational resources through a variety of platforms ranging from print to social media.

Information

- ◆ Keeping abreast of industry news, the state of SimGenetics in the marketplace, and having a source for accurate information is important for producers. ASA Publication, Inc., is committed to providing up-to-date industry news and information.

An Effective Outlet for Advertisers

With the increasing demand for SimGenetics, now is the perfect time to create a specific marketing plan to access the growing number of breeders and potential customers. ASA Publication, Inc., has all of the resources to help you create an effective marketing strategy.

Advertising with ASA provides added value beyond the ad. Your sale date will be published in the Register and SimTalk Date Books; on simmental.org; and sales reports with averages, high-sellers, and up to four photos printed in the Register.

ASA PUBLICATION, INC.

Your Source for Everything Simmental

The Official Publisher for the American Simmental Association

the Register

Serving as ASA's official publication, the Register has a circulation of 7,500 and focuses primarily on the active membership. Mailed nine times annually, the Register provides a direct and consistent line of communication to the ASA membership in a glossy, full-color format.

Circulation — 7,500 +

SimTalk

SimTalk, a glossy, full-color publication, is published four times annually, and has a circulation of over 40,000. With a focus on the Simmental breed's role in the commercial industry, each issue of SimTalk finds its way to commercial cow-calf producers, feedlots, and much more.

Circulation — 40,000 +

Sire Source

A directory mailed each spring to more than 40,000, targeting potential clients at the height of the semen sales season. More are handed out at trade shows and industry events, and carried by ASA SimSpecialists throughout the year. We also offer the opportunity to promote additional sires in the online version of Sire Source anytime during the next year. Promoting your bull in the online version opens huge marketing avenues for you.

Circulation — 40,000 +

There's never been a better time to promote your genetics.

The 2026 Sire Source is leveling up and we're excited to announce a major expansion in distribution!

For the first time ever, the 2026 edition will be mailed to everyone who receives SimTalk, reaching over 40,000 ASA members, commercial producers, universities, and industry professionals. That's a huge leap from the previous 8,000-member reach and an incredible opportunity to get your bulls in front of the people who matter most.

This means your bull isn't just listed; he's promoted directly to a nationwide audience of cattle producers who are looking to introduce new genetics into their herds. More eyes. More potential buyers. More value for your dollar.

Even better? You don't have to wait. Sign up now and your bull's listing will go live on simmental.org for the rest of 2025, appear in the full-color 2026 print edition, and remain accessible for a full year. That's unbeatable long-term visibility.

You don't have to be an ASA member to advertise. If your bull meets the Sire Source guidelines*, you can advertise, whether you're a longtime breeder or a first-time advertiser.

Don't miss this chance to be part of the most impactful Sire Source yet.

Contact Nancy Chesterfield:
nchesterfield@simmgene.com
or Rebecca Price:
rprice@simmgene.com
to get started today.

*Bulls must be registered with the ASA and have all required DNA testing completed to qualify as approved AI sires.

RATES & POLICIES

SimTalk is an 8 1/8 x 10 7/8-inch publication produced by the Register, the official publication of the American Simmental Association. Published four times annually, SimTalk is a glossy, full-color publication with a circulation that targets commercial users of SimGenetics. Advertising in SimTalk provides a unique opportunity to brand and trademark your program to thousands of potential customers. If you are serious about communicating with the commercial beef business, consider an advertising presence in every one of our four annual issues.

Send all ad materials to: register@simmgene.com

A non-refundable $50.00 fee will be assessed if a client does not meet deadlines or if the client commits to advertising and cancels after the deadline or if the ad must be dropped to ensure on-time publication.

Ad materials (including photos) must be in the SimTalk office by the dates listed above. SimTalk, which mails by bulk rate, assumes no responsibility for actual receipt date.

Digital Advertising

The ASA offers a variety of digital advertising options. For more details, visit simmental.org.

Layouts & Proofs

Every effort will be made to provide proofs on all ads, if all ad materials arrive in the SimTalk office prior to the deadline and a correct email address or fax number is provided.

Terms

All accounts are due and payable when invoiced. Interest charges of 1.5% per month (18% APR) will be added to accounts 30 days past due. If an account becomes 60 days delinquent, all ASA Publication, Inc., work may be suspended until full payment is made. After review by the ASA Executive Committee, ASA privileges may be denied to those with accounts over 90 days delinquent.

Advertising Content

SimTalk and its staff assume no responsibility or obligation to verify the accuracy and truthfulness of advertising copy submitted to SimTalk. However, SimTalk reserves the right to reject any advertising copy or photo which SimTalk deems unsuitable for publication for any reason, including copy or photographs that are false or misleading. SimTalk assumes no responsibility for the accuracy and truthfulness of submitted print-ready ads. Advertisers shall indemnify and hold harmless SimTalk for any claims concerning advertising content as submitted. Advertising containing pedigrees or statements regarding performance must conform to records kept by the American Simmental Association. Copy deviating from official records may be changed as necessary without advertiser consent.

Editorial Policy

Opinions expressed are the writers' and not necessarily those of SimTalk. Photographs are welcome, but no responsibility is assumed for material while in transit or while in the office.
